Pink Eye

Pink eye or conjunctivitis is commonly caused by a virus which infects the membrane that lines the eyelid and covers the white part of the eyeball. The small blood vessels in the membrane become inflamed which causes the eye to look pink.

Pink eye usually lasts one to three weeks with the following symptoms in one or both eyes:

- Itchiness
- Redness
- Mucus discharge
- Tearing
- Gritty feeling

Pink eye is highly contagious, so it is important to prevent the spread of infection to the other eye if only one eye has been infected, by following these steps:

- Do not share washcloths or use the same one on the non-infected eye
- Do not touch your eye with your hands and wash your hands often
- Throw away your eye cosmetics
- Change pillowcases often
- Don't share eye cosmetics
- Throw out your contacts if they are disposable

Treatment for pink eye involves managing the symptoms until it runs its course:

- Clean your eyelids with a damp cloth
- Stop wearing contact lenses
- Inquire with your physician if all your eye contact lens accessories should be discarded and replaced
- Apply a compress to the eye, either a cool or warm one

Ask your pharmacist about which eye drops would be suitable for you.

The Canadian Journal of Ophthalmology has recently determined pink eye can also be a possible primary symptom of COVID-19. If you have severe symptoms of pink eye with other symptoms of COVID-19, contact your physician.
